

General Production Information

How our shows work...

Each year, students at Metropolitan Fine Arts Center work diligently for their end of year Spring Production. Each class at the school will perform in at least one of four shows. Some classes will perform in as many as four. The production storyline is carried by Company and Ensemble dances which have been rehearsed outside of regularly scheduled classes. Ensemble and Company dances are in all four productions. Our performance consists of two acts with a 15-minute Intermission.

General Contact Information

During production week, the studio will be closed. You may have important needs during those times. The phone numbers below will play a recorded message giving you information on how to get in touch with someone who will be able to assist you with any concerns you may have. In addition, many production questions will be answered at MFAC Online.
